Tyvek Coveralls & Protective Clothing Used To Protect Workers During Oil Spill and Beach Cleanup Operations On The Gulf Coast

Tyvek Coveralls are special lightweight coveralls that are made to protect workers from oil, grease, mold, paint, chemicals and other harmful agents in many day to day jobs. None of these jobs are more visible than the cleanup of the oil spill on the beaches of the Gulf Coast. You can not just buy Tyvek Coveralls at Wal-mart, so where do you go? How do you find the protective clothing needed for such jobs as the beach cleanup effort?

I spoke to the helpful people at Swiftco Industrial Supply, <http://www.swiftcosupply.com>, an industrial supply company in Georgia about the protective clothing and they gave me some interesting facts about Tyvek Coveralls.

Tyvek is the industry standard for protective clothing. Coveralls with hoods and elastic cuffs for extra protection are available along with Tyvek head covers and foot covers.

Tyvek Coveralls protect against microscopic particles as small as .5 microns.

Tyvek Coveralls are scratch and tear resistant.

Tyvek Coveralls are made with a single layer of fabric making them light weight but strong.

Tyvek Coveralls let air and moisture vapor pass through, keeping the wearer cooler and reducing the chances of heat stress.

Swiftco Industrial Supply is eager to help with Tyvek Coveralls and any other industrial supplies needed in the Gulf oil spill cleanup effort. They have Tyvek coveralls with and without hoods along with foot and head covers, all at discount prices on their website. They can also provide any type of Safety Equipment or Industrial cleaning supplies you may need, including safety goggles, respirators, ear plugs, gloves and hard hats. They even carry food service supplies for disaster relief operations.
